Our government's response to refugee and migrant families: the creation and expansion of new private prisons in remote areas of south Texas

FILM SCREENING AND DISCUSSION

The documentary "No Sanctuary: Big Business and Family Detention" by filmmaker Matthew Gossage chronicles the return of immigrant family detention in the United States. Produced by the organization Grassroots Leadership, the documentary tells the story through the people who live it and shines a light on the growing grassroots movement fighting to close these family prisons. Follow-up discussion will be led by Dr. Karla McKanders of the UT College of Law.
