

Subject: Associate Lecturer of Environmental Studies

The Environmental Studies Program in the College of Liberal Studies at the University of Wisconsin-La Crosse is soliciting qualified candidates for the position of Associate Lecturer. This is a full time (100%) academic year position beginning August 29, 2016. Environmental Studies is an interdisciplinary minor at the university, which includes courses in the humanities, social and natural sciences. Our minors include students from departments across the university. Duties of this position include teaching multiple sections of Introduction to Environmental Studies each semester, and upper level courses in environmental studies. Additional responsibilities may include serving as course coordinator for Introduction to Environmental Studies (e.g. helping to coordinate speakers, field trips, and assessment activities within the course). The Environmental Studies Program supports and values diversity in its staff and students. We seek a colleague who shares the program's commitment to diversity and who will be a dedicated teacher, active scholar, and effective mentor for students with diverse backgrounds, preparation, and career goals.
