

Subject: Assistant Professor in Organismal Biology - Rhodes College

The Department of Biology at Rhodes College seeks qualified applicants for a two-year faculty position to begin in August of 2016. Candidates must have a Ph.D. in an organismal field of biology and a strong interest in engaging students at the undergraduate level. The teaching responsibility of six courses per year (labs are counted as a full course) will normally include an upper-level biology course with lab for Biology majors and participation in the introductory biology course covering organismal topics. Other teaching opportunities may include a senior seminar and a lecture/lab course for non-science majors in the candidate's area of interest.

All application materials must be submitted online. Review of completed applications will begin on January 21, 2016 and continue until the position is filled. Completed applications will include a cover letter, a curriculum vitae, a statement of teaching philosophy, a statement regarding current or previous research activity, copies of graduate and undergraduate transcripts, and three letters of recommendation. Please address in your cover letter your interest in teaching at a liberal arts college and how your experiences with teaching, scholarship, and/or service might contribute to a college community that includes a commitment to diversity as one of its core values. The online application system will solicit letters of recommendation electronically from the candidate's recommenders, once their contact information has been entered by the candidate.
