Subject: Cornell's 2016 Communicating Science Workshop

Graduate students and post-doctoral researchers are invited to apply for the 2016 Communicating Science Workshop on Friday, July 15th, 2016 and Saturday, July 23rd, 2016, at Cornell University, Ithaca, NY.

This unique professional development experience will provide attendees with a fantastic opportunity to meet young leaders in science communication from across the Upstate New York community, learn from and interact with a remarkable group of invited experts, and produce an original work communicating scholarly research to a new audience.

Application, registration, and attendance to the workshop is free of charge for accepted applicants, though transportation will not be provided or reimbursed. We ask that you only apply if you can attend both days of the workshop - Friday, July 15th, 2016 and Saturday, July 23rd, 2016. The application will close on March 30th, 2016.

The application can be found here.
