A Retrospective Consideration of Human–Machine Communication

Presented by the Society for Technical Communication-East Tennessee Chapter

Join Fred O'Hara in a retrospective consideration of human–machine communication during the past century as human–machine interfaces have become, simultaneously, easier to use, more intuitive, and more complex.

Fred is a long-time member of the chapter and a popular presenter. His experience and sense of humor make for a worthwhile evening. He will offer a (very) short history of the chapter's evolution and then launch into his talk.

Where: Upstairs meeting room at Barley's Taproom and Pizzeria, 200 East Jackson Avenue

When: Friday, Nov. 4 Meet & Eat 6:30 pm; Program 7–8 pm

Cost: $15/STC member; $20/guest. Price includes the program and pizza buffet. Pay with cash or check at door.

Please RSVP maryrai@bellsouth.net

STC
Society for Technical Communication