

From: David Shiffman
Subject: Applications now open for Elasmobranch Society Diversity in Science Initiative

Hello, everyone!

There's still time to apply for the Elasmobranch Society diversity in marine science initiative!

The American Elasmobranch Society, the world's oldest and largest professional society focusing on the scientific study of sharks and their relatives, is accepting applications for the 2nd year of our diversity initiative until November 15th.

Awardees will be given one year of Society membership, in addition to specialized professional development training, mentorship, and networking opportunities.

For more details, including eligibility and a link to the application, please see the link below.

Please share with interested colleagues/students/labmates, and please let us know if you have any questions.

<http://www.southernfriedscience.com/applications-now-open-for-the-elasmobranch-societys-diversity-in-marine-science-initiative/>

Sincerely,

--

David Shiffman

Ph.D. Candidate, Research Assistant,
Abess Center for Ecosystem Science and Policy

e: david.shiffman@gmail.com | p: 412.915.2309
t: @WhySharksMatter | b: Southern Fried Science Blog
w: Lab website | cv: Online CV