

From: Marco Hatch
Subject: Fwd: Open position: Salish Sea Studies Institute Director at WWU

---

----- Forwarded message -----

From: Marco Hatch <Marco.Hatch@wwu.edu>
Date: Tue, Nov 22, 2016 at 10:41 AM
Subject: Open position: Salish Sea Studies Institute Director at WWU
To:

Hello Friends,

Western Washington University is recruiting for the Director of the Salish Sea Studies Institute. The Salish Sea Studies Institute is a brand new and really important Institute here at Western Washington University and I really need your help reaching the best possible candidates. This is a big complex position and will be charged with doing many things, including acting as a hub connecting research and communities throughout the Salish Sea. This position will also have a large role in hosting the biannual Salish Sea Ecosystem Conference. Additional aspects of the job can be tailored fit the Director. The search committee is hoping attract applicants with a wide range of experiences, including Tribal natural resource management, government, non-profit, academic, etc.

If you have any questions about WWU please feel free to contact me, or if you have specific questions about the position please contact Brian Burton (Search chair) at Brian.Burton@wwu.edu

The job announcement can be found here (note the first review is on Dec 12).

<https://jobs.wwu.edu/JobPosting.aspx?JPID=7315>

Thank you for sharing this in your personal networks.

Marco Hatch

Assistant Professor

Department of Environmental Sciences

Huxley College of the Environment

Western Washington University

Bellingham, WA 98225-9181

Marco.Hatch@wwu.edu

360-650-7589