

From: Barbara Dugelby
Subject: Environmental Education Coordinator - Wild Basin Creative Research Center/St. Edward's University - Austin, Texas

St. Edward's University/Wild Basin Creative Research Center seeks a highly motivated, experienced, and accomplished Environmental Education Coordinator with proven success at executing a full range of environmental education engagement strategies and programs, including an ability to interact with participants of all ages and types in a welcoming and professional manner. The Environmental Education Coordinator will be responsible for planning, implementing, and evaluating all environmental educational activities and events at Wild Basin Creative Research Center and Wilderness Preserve in West Austin. This position is currently grant-funded and will start at a 50% FTE level, with the intention of increasing to full-time within 12 months. Working hours are at least twenty hours per week, flexible to accommodate evening meetings and weekend events. Wild Basin is a unique resource in Central Texas, as an urban wilderness preserve, research center, and environmental education hub.

Applications submitted prior to May 20, 2017 will receive full consideration. For more information, please see <https://stedwards.applicantpro.com/jobs/558062.html>

--

Barbara L. Dugelby, Ph.D.
Cell: 830-965-6869
barbara@dugelby.com