

Popular cultural practices—from sports and food to tourism, film music—transform landscapes & economies, vary and move across space, intersect with people’s relationship with places, nations, & environments, and serve as arenas for struggles over identities, social justice, and sustainability.

Starbucks and Our Plastic Pollution Problem

Geographies of American Popular Culture (GEOG 423)— Fall 2021

Open to undergrad & grad students

Tues & Thurs, 2:50-4:05pm

Instructor: Dr. Derek Alderman